

"I don't need disability insurance because I don't work in a dangerous profession."

This is a common misconception people have when thinking about whether they need to protect their paycheck with disability insurance. But the truth is, illness—not accidents—account for 90% of disabilities that keep people out of work.*

That's why there's disability insurance. If you were sick or injured and unable to work, it would replace a portion of your paycheck until you could work again. Think of it as insurance for your paycheck.
